MEMORANDUM OF LAW IN SUPPORT OF MOTION OF 87 RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS FOR LEAVE TO FILE MEMORANDUM AS AMICI CURIAE IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFFS' MOTIONS FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTIONS

The proposed amici are a coalition of congregations and houses of worship as well as faith-affiliated professional, civil liberties, and immigrant rights groups who believe that the arbitrary rescission of Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (“DACA”) will indelibly harm them and their communities by forcing committed members of their congregations and organizations to leave the country or return to the shadows.

Amici respectfully move for leave to file their memorandum of law, attached to the Declaration of Steven A. Zalesin as Exhibit A, as amici curiae in support of plaintiffs' motions for preliminary injunctions. (See Dkt. 123 in Case No. 16-cv-4756 and Dkt. 96 in Case No. 17-cv-5228.) "A district court has broad discretion to grant or deny an appearance as amicus curiae in a given case." Citizens Against Casino Gambling v. Kempthorne, 471 F. Supp. 2d 295, 311 (W.D.N.Y. 2007) (citing United States v. Ahmed, 788 F. Supp. 196, 198 n.1 (S.D.N.Y. 1992), aff'd, 980 F.2d 161 (2d Cir. 1992)). Because there is no district court rule governing the appearance of amici, this Court may be guided by the requirements of Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 29. Cf. United States v. Hunter, No. 2:97-cr-059, 1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9869, at *1 (D. Vt. June 10, 1998) (relying on Appellate Rule 29 to establish the burden of an applicant on a motion to file an amicus curiae brief). An amicus curiae other than the United States “may file a brief only by leave of court or if the brief states that all parties have consented to its filing.” Fed. R. App. P. 29(a)(2). Here, because all parties have consented to the submission of amici’s brief, see Declaration of Steven A. Zalesin ¶ 3, the Appellate Rules suggest that amici may file without leave of court.

Nevertheless, leave would be warranted under the standard that governs non-consent motions for leave to file a brief as amicus curiae. In this Circuit, “[t]he usual rationale for amicus curiae submissions is that they are of aid to the court and offer insights not available from the parties.” Citizens Against Casino Gambling, 471 F. Supp. 2d at 311 (citations omitted); see also Am. Bird Conservancy v. Harvey, 232 F. Supp. 3d 292, 299 (E.D.N.Y. 2017) (collecting cases). In 2002, then-Judge Alito opined that a “court would be well advised to grant motions for leave to file amicus briefs unless it is obvious that the proposed briefs do not meet Rule 29’s criteria as broadly interpreted,” and observed that to “freely grant leave” is the “predominant practice.” Neonatology Assocs., P.A. v. Comm’r, 293 F.3d 128, 133 (3d Cir. 2002).

Amici have a strong interest in this case. Amici include representatives of religious denominations ranging from the Santa Fe Monthly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) to the Metropolitan New York Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, and civil rights and legal organizations ranging from the American Association of Jewish Lawyers and Jurists to Muslim Advocates. Although their faith traditions and political views differ widely, each of the proposed amici has a compelling interest in avoiding the loss of religious leaders, congregants, and family members of congregants who are DACA recipients. The particular interest of each coalition member in restraining the implementation of the DACA Termination Memo is set forth in Appendix A to the proposed memorandum of law.

Moreover, amici satisfy the criteria set out in Citizens Against Casino Gambling, 471 F. Supp. 2d at 311, of providing aid to the court, and offering insights not available from any party. The proposed memorandum of law reflects the unique perspective of this diverse group of organizations. Many amici have firsthand experience, based on interactions with clergy and congregants who are DACA recipients, of the valuable contributions to faith and community made by DACA recipients. Other amici do religious and charitable work in Latin America and other regions and therefore have knowledge of the challenges and dangers these young people would face if they were deported. Finally, some amici provide social services or sanctuary to those targeted for deportation, and therefore have firsthand knowledge of the burden that ending DACA would inflict upon religious institutions and communities.

Finally, amici's proposed memorandum of law is timely. Amici submitted their proposed memorandum by the filing deadline of December 22, 2017.

In light of amici's significant interest in this case and the useful information their proposed memorandum of law would provide the Court on these important issues, amici respectfully request that the Court grant this Motion for Leave to File Memorandum of Law as Amici Curiae in Support of Plaintiffs' Motions for Preliminary Injunctions, and accept the memorandum of law accompanying the Declaration of Steven A. Zalesin as Exhibit A for filing.
